TVEC Annual Meeting Sets Another Record

It was another record turnout for Trinity Valley Electric Cooperative's 2017 annual meeting, held October 12 at the Canton Civic Center.

More than 700 members and guests enjoyed barbecue sandwiches, perusing door prizes and various information booths before the meeting began. TVEC employees were on hand to answer questions in several areas including technology, safety and public relations efforts.

TVEC attorney John Mosley served as master of ceremonies, welcoming many special guests, military veterans and government officials in attendance.

Boy Scout Troop 332 opened the meeting with a posting of the colors and pledge of allegiance, followed by a video presentation of the Star Spangled Banner that received a round of applause.

After the meeting was called to order by TVEC Board Chairman Howard Tillison, General Manager/CEO Jerry Boze took some time to recognize the dedicated workforce at the company.

"It is a privilege and honor to work alongside these folks every day and they do a marvelous job," Boze said. "No business can be any good if they don't have good employees and we are proud of ours, we hope you are as well."

Boze went on to talk about the company's response to the tornado outbreak of April 29.

"Basically, it turned a lot of lives upside down and I can tell you that in the history of the co-op this is the worst disaster we have experienced," he said. "But we have a disaster recovery plan, and when that happens everything kicks into gear and every employee in every department knows what they need to do. They did a marvelous job."

Boze then thanked TVEC members for their support and patience as work was underway to restore power.

Members of Boy Scout Troop 332 lead the Pledge of Allegiance to open the meeting.

More than 120 door prizes were awarded after the business meeting adjourned.

“We can’t thank you enough for the kindness shown to our employees during that time and the patience that members showed. Your appreciation means more to the employees than you may ever know,” Boze said.

TVEC Chief Operating Officer Tony Watson followed with a report on TVEC’s efforts in safety and reliability.

“Training is paramount to keeping everyone safe,” Watson said. “We have a comprehensive training program for both outside and inside personnel that is a continuous effort.”

Chief Communications Officer Jeff Lane provided updates on cyber security and grid security, and an overview of TVEC’s efforts to provide useful information and programs for people throughout the service area.

A report of the company’s financial information was given by Chief Financial officer Bryan Wood, noting that more than $26 million in capital credits had been returned to TVEC members since 2007.

Trey Rowe from TVEC’s auditing firm Bolinger, Segars, Gilbert & Moss gave the results of the company’s 2016 audit.

“Our audit report was a clean unmodified opinion,” Rowe said. “We found the records to be in good order. Overall the cooperative appears to be in good financial condition and we have no findings to report as a result of the audit.”

Rowe also presented the voting totals for the 2017 board election, with a total of 2,157 valid ballots received. Districts 1, 4 and 5 were on the ballot, with the incumbent board members running unopposed.

In district 1, Carolyn Minor received 1,723 votes. District 4 had 1,641 votes for Jo Ann Hanstrom. District 5 had 1,698 votes for Ed Reeve.

Following the meeting, a raffle was held for more than 120 door prizes, including bill credits, tools, televisions and small appliances.

TVEC members watch a video about the co-ops response to the tornado outbreak in Henderson and Van Zandt Counties on April 29.

Premier prizes awarded included a 55” LED television, won by Tony Martin.

Set the Table for Safety

WHETHER TESTING OUT A NEW DISH OR WHIPPING UP A FAMILY CLASSIC, THERE'S ONE recipe that should always be included on the menu during holiday season: safety. Follow this recipe to make sure the festivities create happy memories instead of danger.

Recipe for Kitchen Safety

INGREDIENTS

Clean oven, stovetop, vent hood and duct
Tidy refrigerator coils
Functioning smoke alarms
Fresh batteries

Working ground-fault circuit interrupters
Spotless appliances
Kitchen timer
Vigilance

DIRECTIONS

1. Prevent fires by making sure your oven and stovetop are clean and free of grease and dust. You also should clean the exhaust hood and duct over the stove. Lastly, vacuum refrigerator coils every three months to prevent dirt buildup.

2. Never leave cooking unattended. You should not cook if you are sleepy or under the influence of alcohol. Children also should be closely supervised in the kitchen.

3. Use a kitchen timer to remind you that the stove or oven is on. It's easy to forget about something that's cooking, especially when you're entertaining guests. Make sure your dish doesn't become a fire hazard!

4. Keep all electrical appliances and their cords away from the sink and any heat sources. When the countertop is crowded with mixers, food processors and other appliances, it's easy to lose sight of a cord that has strayed into the water or over a flame.

5. Smoke alarms should be installed in the kitchen and in every bedroom, outside each sleeping area and on every level of the home. For the best protection, smoke alarms should be interconnected so they all sound if one sounds.

6. Test the batteries in each smoke alarm every month, replace them at least once a year, and replace the units every 10 years.

7. Ground-fault circuit interrupters are electrical safety devices that shut off power to electrical circuits when they detect ground faults, which could shock or electrocute someone. GFCIs should be installed wherever electricity and water may come in contact, such as the kitchen. GFCIs also should be tested every month; visit esfi.org for testing instructions.

8. Enjoy! Being proactive about safety will give you peace of mind and allow you to enjoy your time with loved ones.

Stuff the Turkey, Save Energy

THANKSGIVING IS A GREAT TIME OF YEAR TO BRING FRIENDS AND FAMILIES TOGETHER.

It also means spending time in the kitchen to prepare the traditional feast. Energy costs in the kitchen can total up to 15 percent of a home's energy use, so it's worth a bit of effort to learn how to use less energy while cooking.

Here are some tips to help keep your energy costs down during the holiday:

Keep the oven door closed. When you want to check on the progress of a dish cooking in your oven, use the light instead of the door. Every time the oven door is opened, the temperature inside is reduced by as much as 25 degrees, delaying the progress of the dish and, more importantly, costing more money to get that turkey perfectly cooked.

Check your oven temperature. A freestanding oven thermometer is a great way to check how hot your oven really gets. Many ovens' heat output varies slightly from the numbers on the dial or readout. By testing your oven temperature at several settings—325, 350, 375 and 400 degrees—you can find out if your oven runs hot or cool, and factor an extra 25 degrees or so into your cooking, if necessary. Always check your freestanding oven thermometer to verify the temperature so that you're not needlessly cranking up the heat on an already-hot oven!

Turn down the heat. Spending all day in the kitchen? If you've got the oven running and soup on the stove, you can probably turn the heat down a bit. The heat from your oven, not to mention dinner guests, should keep your home warmer than usual, and your furnace won't have to work as hard.

Clean your burners. If you've got an electric range, one great way to keep your stovetop cooking efficiently is to keep the reflectors under your burners grime-free. They can be a pain to clean, but regular maintenance can go a long way. You also can invest in better reflectors that decrease stovetop cooking times, which will save you energy (and money!) over time.

TIME TO FALL BACK!

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

ends at 2 a.m., Sunday, November 5.
Remember to set your clocks back one hour.

One Man’s Treasure Helps Change Futures for Former Inmates

While it may not be completely true that “the clothes make the man,” having a decent set of clothes can make a man’s future prospects brighten considerably. That is the mission of One Man’s Treasure, a resource for recently incarcerated men providing clothing that can be beneficial in many ways.

“The state provides pants and a shirt, $100 and a bus ticket and not much else,” said Executive Director Annette Jenkins. “And by providing these guys with just some decent clothes they are much better able to deal with life after prison.”

The charity provided statistics showing that after three years, their clients had a recidivism (return to prison) rate of only 13%, compared to 23-44% statewide. 30055179001

“It is only one part of it, but it means a lot to be able to dress normally,” she said. “You see these who are just released and trying to put their life back together and they don’t even have a coat or another set of clothes. Some of them have no support structure and no resources so it is pretty hard not to return to what they knew before.”

Helping Angels of Kaufman
$5,000

Helping Angels of Kaufman provides assistance with food, clothes, utilities, medical needs and temporary shelter for people affected by unforeseen circumstances.

Henderson County Rainbow Room
$3,000

The Henderson County Rainbow Room provides clothing and personal care items for children who have been taken into the care of Child Protective Services.

Kaufman Christian Help Center
$5,000

Kaufman Christian Help Center serves as a food resource for needy families, including additional holiday food and backpacks for students at the beginning of the school year.

Kaufman County Master Gardener Association
$1,000

Kaufman County Master Gardeners provide educational opportunities for area residents throughout the year, and participate in beautification projects throughout the county.

Kiwanis Club of Cedar Creek Lake
$5,000

The Kiwanis Club of Cedar Creek Lake is a service club that operates Project School Bell, clothing 50 underprivileged youth from lake-area schools.

The Purpose Project
$5,000
